

William Irwine (Irvine)

Rushworth Chronicle

28 August, 1885

All those who were acquainted with W. Irwine will regret to learn that he expired at his residence, Whroo, on Sunday last.

The deceased, who had lived for many years on that gold-field, was of a most genial disposition, being one of the leaders in their sports and pastimes.

The remains were followed by a large number of mourners to their last resting place in the local cemetery on Tuesday. He leaves a large family to mourn their loss.

The Whroo cemetery interment register includes 25 August, 1885, for a William Irvine, not Irwine.
