Waranga Chronicle

10 June, 1880

Whroo has to regret the loss of one of its oldest residents, Mr LeRoy, who has followed the occupation of a miner in that goldfield for many years.

The deceased expired at his residence on Friday last, after a lingering illness.

His remains were interred at the Whroo cemetery on Sunday. Mr LeRoy was respected by all who knew him.

Waranga Chronicle

17 June, 1880

It will be remembered by our readers that in our last issue we reported the death of an old resident of Whroo, named LeRoy.

It appears that his wife and children were left in straightened circumstances.

With their usual liberality, the residents took the matter in hand, and in a day or two £15 17s 6d was collected on their behalf.

Mrs LeRoy wishes to return thanks to her neighbours for their timely assistance.

The plaque in Whroo cemetery indicates that Mr LeRoy may have been 57.
