

George Thompson

Rushworth Chronicle

5 October, 1894

A miner named G. [George] Thompson, well known throughout the Rushworth district, expired at his residence, "Good Friday", on Wednesday morning last, aged 68 years.

He had worked with his brother on most of the fields about here for the last 30 years, and by their perseverance had succeeded in putting together sufficient money to keep them in their old age.

The deceased was a very good specimen of the hardy pioneers who came to the colony in the early fifties, and was much respected.

The remains were interred in the Whroo Cemetery.
